Shelby Got Bladder Cancer at 21 Years of Age

We often say that anyone can get bladder cancer. Shelby was diagnosed at 21 and found out by reading her pathology results online. Her doctor told her, "In my 30 years of being a medical professional, I've never had anyone as young as you have bladder cancer."

Women and Bladder Cancer

Bladder cancer has long been considered a disease of older men. Though it is more prevalent in men, studies have shown that women are more likely to present more advanced tumors. Women often have a worse prognosis than men at almost every stage of the disease.

Familiar faces from the 2020 Summit

According to a report published by the National Cancer Institute, the survival rate for women with bladder cancer lags behind that of men at all stages of the disease.

BCAN is here to help. We offer resources for women who are facing bladder cancer, including:

- A web site section, "Women and Bladder Cancer: What You Need to Know"
- Stories from female bladder cancer patients
- A webinar, "Women and Bladder Cancer"

Have You Met Ina®, the Intelligent Nutrition Assistant?

As an affinity benefit for members of the BCAN community, we have continued to partner with Savor Health to bring personalized nutrition support to help people with bladder cancer eat healthily and stay well-nourished throughout treatment and beyond.

This service is Ina, the Intelligent Nutrition Assistant.

Good nutrition can help people with cancer feel better and manage symptoms like diarrhea, nausea, tiredness, and decreased appetite.

Simply text Ina from your cell phone 24/7 and she'll respond with personalized nutrition tips, recipes, and answers to your questions.

Knowledge and advice from Ina come from registered oncology-credentialed dietitians, nurses, and doctors who are experts in treating and supporting cancer patients.

Registration and unlimited 24/7 access to Ina is free, safe, and secure.
